

A chrome-plated metal component, likely a lock cylinder or handle, shown in two views. The left view shows the component with a handle and a keyhole. The right view shows the component without the handle, revealing the internal mechanism and a keyhole. The component is made of polished metal and has a cylindrical shape.

A chrome-plated metal component, likely a lock cylinder or handle, shown in two views. The left view shows the component with a handle and a keyhole. The right view shows the component without the handle, revealing the internal mechanism and a keyhole. The component is made of polished metal and has a cylindrical shape.